

Residential

Design & Construction

The owners wanted a home that would blend, in proportion and style, with the English Tudor cottages of the area, yet offer all modern amenities. McCASLIN ASSOCIATES designed an English Tudor exterior with a mission/craftsman style interior, catching the essence of the community that emerged in the 1930s.

The design, with its fine proportioning and extreme attention to detail, was so successful that the home is often mistaken as having been built in the 1930s. The homeowners enjoy over 5,000 square feet of space, bright open rooms with soaring ceilings, and a floor plan designed for today's life style—without losing the warmth of timeless details and superb architecture.

